Days 10 – 15 MAURITIUS

Easily accessible and combinable with other parts of Southern Africa, Mauritius has a year round warm sub-tropical climate. Lying 2400km off the coast of South-East Africa, the island offers excellent service, superb hospitality and friendly smiling faces. The country was discovered in 1505 by the Portuguese and has been occupied by the Dutch, French and British until gaining independence in 1969. Today, the population is a mix of Hindus, Muslims, Chinese, Creoles and Europeans, making for a fascinating diversity of culture, religion, language, architecture and cuisine.

The island of Mauritius is around 60km long and 40km wide. The north of the island is flat and rocky and has the only resort town on the island, Grand Baie. It is a cosmopolitan and bustling centre with a good range of bars, shops and restaurants. In the east, the prevailing winds provide ideal conditions for windsurfing and sailing and some of the most exclusive and private resorts can be found situated along the coastline. On the west coast, there are long stretches of beach with a spectacular mountainous backdrop and in the little developed south, quiet idyllic coves and beaches are easy to find. Other highlights of the island include the tropical forests of Domaine du Chasseur with its monkeys, wild boar and exotic orchids, the world's oldest botanical gardens at Pamplemousses and the colonial architecture and palm lined streets of the island's capital, Port Louis.

The marine wonders of Mauritius can be enjoyed by everyone; diving, snorkelling and glass bottom boats are available to help you appreciate the island's pristine coral and sheltered lagoons. Take hikes in the mountainous interior for spectacular views, swim beneath hidden waterfalls or descend into deep canyons. Getting out and about is a great way to enjoy the wildlife; much of the flora and fauna is rare and unique to the island. Many hotels offer a host of activities including watersports, tennis, horseback riding and deep sea fishing. Keen golfers can enjoy a round of golf of one of the island's many championship quality courses.
